The Railroad Convention.

St. Louis, Nov. 24--The greatest and most important event that has ever taken place in the West is the assembling of the great National Railroad Convention at the Temple. The delegation is much larger than was expected, nearly every appointee having respected the call made on him and promptly appeared.
Early Sunday evening delegates began to arrive, and on Monday 1,000 had registered, and by yesterday morning the number had swollen to nearly 2,000.
The Temple was crowded. On every side of the hall hung flags on which were inscribed the most appropriate mottoes, among which were "Westward the Star of Empire Takes its Way," "900,000,000 of People Seek an Acceptable Route to the Pacific," "The State of Political Powers is Advancing to the West," "A Route to the Pacific Free from Snow."

In front of the stand was arranged products from along the proposed route of the Southern Pacific, and in the back ground stretched a map of the United States showing the route from New York to the Pacific Ocean.

At 11:30 Col. Broadhead, Chairman of the Executive Committee, called the meeting to order, after which Rev. Dr.
Elliott prefaced the proceedings with a most earnest prayer. Col. Broadhead then made some preliminary remarks, after which he read the call for the Convention, following which he announced the presence of delegates from twenty-seven States, representing the wealth and intelligence of the whole country.
He continued: "The stockholders and those who assisted in the construction of the Northern Pacific railroad are the most active in their opposition to the building and Government assistance to the Southern route; and these same interested parties are canvassing the South for the purpose of exciting opposition, but the interest manifested in the in-dissoluble enterprise exhibited in the new routes shows conclusively that the opposition has been able to effect is of the very slightest consequence."

He paid a handsome tribute to the skill and energy of Capt. J. B. Eads, and showed how an earnest people are now to continue the improvement so successfully inaugurated by Capt. Eads in opening the mouth of the Mississippi.
The Col. then read a letter from General Sherman, which excited the wildest enthusiasm, the General being present, but unknown at the time. He continued, "the building of this great road will unite as one common people the inhabitants of the whole Continent, and the success of the convention will add glory to the wealth of good feeling of this glorious nation." The Col. then nominated Gen.
Anderson, of Richmond, Va., as Preliminary Chairman, which was seconded, and the election of the General was unanimous.

On motion a committee on delegation was appointed and the name of States then called. The representatives being as follows: Jas. Hodgson, Cincinnati; P. B. Young, Ill. Hon. Geo. W.
Parker, Ind.; Col. S. C. Wilson, Iowa; Capt. W. J. Boyd, Arkansas; Hon. C.
H. Holliday, Ky.; Thos. L. James, La.; J. S. Harris, Mich.; J. D. Hays, Minn.; W. F. Davidson, Mass.; John R. Hykes, Mo.; D. H. Rowland, N. J.; Hon. J. W.
Craun, N. Y.; Wallace Brown, N. H.; Wm. Johnson, O.; S. S. Straker, Pa.; J. S. Graham, S. C.; Wm. T. McMaster, Tenn.; U. E. Alovay, Texas; Samuel Evans, Va.; Col. Slogged and J. Bell, Wis.; D. B. Larkin, New Mexico; S. V.
Elkin, D. C.; Col. S. S. Sweet, Nebraska.

The delegates then returned to report to the Convention. Mayor Britton was introduced and addressed the meeting, warmly welcoming the delegates to the city. In response to a general request Gen. J. E. Johnston took a seat on the platform. Advancing on the stage Gen.
Sherman greeted him most cordially and seated himself beside him. The applause of the audience at this juncture was almost deafening and continued for some minutes. Gen. B. R. Beauregard appeared on the stage in response to a general call at this time, and was also cordially received by Gen. Sherman, amid great applause. Gen. Jeff. Davis was called to the stage but refused, in deference to some feeling which was exhibited by one or two gentlemen.

After an hour and a half the Convention marched in a body to the new Merchants' Exchange, in which it was originally intended the Convention should be held.
The delegates were shown through the vast building by the House Committee.
They especially admired the great hall.

The Committee on Permanent Organization reported the following officers: President, Judge Stanley Matthews, of Cincinnati; Vice President, Gen. Wm.
Freestone, of Kentucky; Secretary, Col.
John M. Howell, of Arkansas; Official Reporter, L. L. Walbridge, of St. Louis; Sergeant-at-Arms, Major J. E. D. Countess, of St. Louis. A supplemental report was made naming from three to five gentlemen from each State as Vice Presidents and one as Assistant Secretary.
Both reports were adopted.

Both Judge Matthews and Gen. Freeston, upon taking their respective seats, made strong and eloquent speeches in favor of the object of the Convention and the construction of the proposed Southern Trans-Continental road, which were received with hearty applause.
